

Sarah Hein graduated from the University of Detroit Mercy in 2015 with her Bachelors of Science in Nursing. Previously, she attended the University of Michigan where she was awarded a Bachelor's degree in Brain, Behavior and Cognitive Sciences. While attending Loyola University of Chicago, she finished with a Master's degree in Neuroscience. She is currently a registered nurse at Beaumont Health System in the Metro Detroit area. She plans to advance the ranks to become a nurse practitioner. Her other career goals include working with Doctors without Borders and setting up a local nonprofit organization to encourage more Deaf and hard of hearing teens to pursue the medical and science degrees. Sarah knows American Sign Language and is proud to be part of the deaf culture.